FACE CHURCH INQUIRYDominating Figure of Southern Methodist Body Charged with Misconduct.By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Southern Methodist churchmen gathered in Washington today for the most unusual concclave in church history —a secret session to inquire into the charges of misconduct preferred against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., who for many years has been one of the dominating figures in church affairs.A jury of 12 will convene Tuesday morning in the Mount Vernon place Methodist church to take up the charges. If two-thirds of them decide that the evidence against Bishop Cannon justifies it, his suspension will be ordered, and his case referred to the next quadrennial conference of the church for trial on its merits.Bishop Cannon himself is secluded in Sibley hospital, seeing no one and answering no questions.
Hospital authorities even refuse to give out anything concerning his condition.No formal announcement of the nature of the charges against Bishop Cannon, which were drawn up last September by four travelling elders, has ever been made. It is known, however, that they concern his stock market speculation, certain aspects of his activities in the 1928 campaign, in which he aroused the South against Al Smith, and certain of his personal affairs, concerning which few hints have been allowed to escape. The bishop was married about a year ago to Mrs.
Helen McCallum, who had acted as his secretary on a number of his missionary trips.Floating Wreckage May

BOWLING GREEN IS DEFEATED 36 TO 20 BY

Slow Start.

After getting off to a rather slow start against Bowling Green College Reserves Saturday night, the Shovel Y-Indus basketball club put the skids under the up-starters to the tune of 36 to 20 score. The game was played on the Bowling Green court.

Bowling Green took the lead over the local five at the start of the game, the Marion club having difficulty in getting accustomed to the unusually large playing floor. The BeeGees found the going increasingly rough after the first five minutes, as the Marion boys began locating the net with consistency.

With a short time remaining for play in the opening half, Marion wrested the lead from the colleagues and led at the mid way point 12-10.

The scoring guns of the Y-Indus broke loose in full force in the second half. Bowling Green battled hard in an effort to check the fast moving Marion offense but could do little with the cleverly executed passes and sucker shots.

The Y-Indus second stringers were used late in the game as the locals held an advantage that was certain to win the game.

Night.

By United Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 2—Although the last week wrought few important changes in Ohio college basketball, the next six days may alter the positions of some of the championship contenders.

At present, Ohio Wesleyan's leadership in the Buckeyes conference appears to be a one-way ticket to the title. Coach Ray Det-rick's team has won four straight league victories and has a comparatively easy game this week, meeting Miami at Delaware Tuesday night.

Ohio University complicated matters in the Buckeyes league Saturday night by beating Cincinnati's Bearcats, 28 to 22. The result of this game was to make a threeway tie for second place in the league. Ohio, Cincinnati and Denton each have won two games and lost two.

Wooster's powerful offensive machine continued to pace the Ohio conference, winning its seventh conference victory. Wooster defeated Case Saturday night, 45 to hind Wooster by defeating Kent State, 32 to 19, there by winning its sixth consecutive league engagement.

The Claridon girls, paced by Kramer, forward, ran wild over the tall-end Martel team in the first half of the game. Martel failed to score a point in the opening period while the girls were visitors by a 30 to 11 score. The boys' victory retarded for Martel the only unbeaten record in the Marion county league.

Green Camp jumped into an early lead over the winners. Leading 10-9 at the first quarter and 22 to 19 at the half way point.

In the second period Martel came back strong and holding the Claridon girls to two points for the entire period while the 1930 champs were hitting net for to bring the count to 13-11 by the end of the period.

The Martel rally was cut short early in the final frame as Claridon offense clicked again and stopped Martel team cold, allowing the losers but a single basket in the last period.

Kramer of Claridon was easily the outstanding player of the game. There was never any doubt as to who would finish on top in the boys' encounter. Martel jumped into an early lead and was never headed although Claridon caused

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—The financial market turned into the cash cautious today. The market displayed a decline in the main, but the indication of throwing out the晦 is the abbreviation. GRAINS SHOW EARLY GAINS

Lack of Moisture Leads to Upturns in Chicago Pit Sales.

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Grains advanced early today after a wavering start. Persistent lack of moisture over most domestic wheat territory led to increased uneasiness regarding prospective crop damage. Liverpool stocks of wheat showed curtailment, although stocks on ocean passage enlarged. Opening unchanged to 5 cents off; wheat later scored material upturns. Corn also started unchanged to 5¢ down and subsequently rose all around.

One of the victims of the present low egg prices are the cold storage men who prepared dozens of eggs at 25 cents a dozen last fall. Forced to undersell fresh eggs by a few cents, they are losing heavily.

LOAD LIMITS CUT TO SAVE HIGHWAYS

Maximum Weights of Vehicles and Cargo Reduced 50 Per Cent.

Maximum loads on county and township improved roads must be reduced by 50 per cent during thawing periods this winter, according to warning signs posted on the county's 700 miles of roads today by County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens.

The reduction is ordered every winter when thawing begins and also when the roads carry excessive moisture. The order is made by county commissioners in an effort to keep the roads from becoming full of ruts and chuck holes.

During the summer and also during the time the ground is frozen the maximum loads are 10 tons for trucks with solid tires and 12 tons for trucks with pneumatic tires.
The reduction ordered by commissioners sets the maximum at five tons for solid tires and six tons for pneumatic tires. Load limits depend on tire sizes.

COLLECTION BOOSTS

Third Time Extension for Payments Becomes Effective Today.

Tax collections in Marion county neared the three-quarter million mark today as the third extension period allowed by County Treasurer Bert J. Shelton became effective.

Shelton's office Saturday was filled all day with taxpayers who turned in a total of $32,015.77, boosting the total for the December collection to $715,127.35, an average daily collection of $20,430.

On Jan. 31 a year ago the total was $834,032.61, an average daily collection of $19,860. This figure includes seven days more of collections than this year, since collections began later this year.

The third extension period, which began today, will terminate on Tuesday, Feb. 10.

Talk about your rheumatism or your cold, of course. That's na-five minutes.

U. S. GUNBOAT ROUTS BANDITS

Victorious in Brief but Intense Battle on River in China.

By The Associated Press

HANKOW, Feb. 2.—American three-inch guns proved superior to ancient muzzle-loading cannons as the United States gunboat Panay defeated Chinese bandits in a brief but intensive battle on the Yangtze river 275 miles above this port yesterday.

Neither the Panay nor an American cargo boat the warship was conveying downstream suffered a casualty, although both ran a veritable hall of solid shot, nails and scrap-iron fired from red batteries.

The Panay raked the shores with withering effect and quickly silenced the bandits' guns.

Roving bands of so-called Communists have harassed shipping on the upper Yangtze for several months. American, British, Japanese and Chinese shipping has suffered.

The bands were blamed for the predicament of the American freighter Chita, aground in the river below Shasi.

Authorities declared the Chinese bandits had removed buoys marking the river channel. Shortly before the attack on the Panay, Communists attacked the important city of Yochow at the head of Tungting lake, but were driven off. Three suspected Communists were executed at Hankow.

MRS. TAFT HONORED IN FUNERAL RITES

Residents of Cincinnati Unite in Final Tribute to Community Benefactor.

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 2.—The city paused today to pay tribute to Mrs. Anna Sinton Taft. Funeral services in the historic old house on Pike street marked the passing of its mistress and a leader in the cultural life of Cincinnati for more than a half a century.

The University of Cincinnati, the Institute of Fine Arts, the art museum and the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, all recipients of her gifts, designated official representatives at the services.

And with her passing the famous old house and its private art collection passed into possession of the city, along with a $1,000,000 endowment for its maintenance, to be administered by the Institute of Fine Arts. The home and art collection were bequeathed to the city in 1928 by Mr. and Mrs. Taft.

The Taft home has figured prominently in the city's history for more than three quarters of a century. In Dec. 4, 1878, Mrs. Taft was wed to Charles P. Taft, brilliant young lawyer. Mr. Taft, widely known philanthropist and half-brother of William Howard Taft, late chief justice of the United States, died in the residence, Dec. 31, 1929. The death of Mrs. Taft occurred unexpectedly in the home Saturday.

Burial was in the family plot in Spring Grove cemetery.

Mink and Muskrat May Be Taken
Up to March 1.

The season in Ohio for taking all game and fur-bearing animals except mink and muskrat is now closed. State Game Protector O. H. Neimeyer announced today. Neimeyer says mink and muskrat may be taken until March 1.

According to Neimeyer, more raccoons were taken alive in this locality this season than in any previous year and more have been kept for pets and propagation. A large number of persons have filed reports with Neimeyer concerning the number taken and the number now in their possession. Neimeyer urges that all those who have not done so do so immediately to avoid violating the law.

Raccoons may be kept during the closed season if they have been legally taken, Neimeyer stated.

NEVADA, Feb. 2.—Private funeral services for Eunice, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Murphy of southeast of Nevada, who died on Thursday night, were held at the home. Burial was made in Nevada cemetery. The child was born Tuesday morning.

The University of Cincinnati, the Institute of Fine Arts, the art museum and the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, all recipients of her gifts, designated official representatives at the services.

And with her passing the famous old house and its private art collection passed into possession of the city, along with a $1,000,000 endowment for its maintenance, to be administered by the Institute of Fine Arts. The home and art collection were bequeathed to the city in 1928 by Mr. and Mrs. Taft.

The Taft home has figured prominently in the city's history for more than three quarters of a century. In Dec. 4, 1878, Mrs. Taft was wed to Charles P. Taft, brilliant young lawyer. Mr. Taft, widely known philanthropist and half-brother of William Howard Taft, late chief justice of the United States, died in the residence, Dec. 31, 1929. The death of Mrs. Taft occurred unexpectedly in the home Saturday.

Burial was in the family plot in Spring Grove cemetery.

COLUMBUS PINMEN WIN TOURNEY HERE

Twenty-Three Teams Compete in Marion Sweepstakes at Recreation Alleys.

Battering the maple for a high score of 2,851, the Kraft Mayonnaise bowling team of Columbus won the Marion sweepstakes bowling tournament for the second consecutive year yesterday. The tournament was conducted by the Marion Recreation Bowling alleys. Twenty-three teams were entered in the tourney against 14 last year.

Trailing the Kraft five in the tournament were the Findlay Recreation five with a total of 2,832, the Norge Refrigerators of Columbus with 2,822, the Neil House of Columbus with 2,820 and the Mansfield Chevrolets with 2,699.

The only Marion team to place near the top was the Jim Dugan quintet which hammered the pins for 2,856 to finish seventh.

First prize money for the tournament amounted to $100. The total money divided among the teams was $345.

CITY MEETS PAY DAY

All Employees and Officials Receive Salaries from Advance Draw.

City officials and employees are jubilant today. It is payday at city hall, and Auditor J. L. Landes says there is sufficient funds in the treasury to pay everyone, following an advance draw from the county Friday.

The draw of $20,000 Friday is the second made this year to meet salaries and bills due. The first draw made early in January was also for $20,000.

With the additional funds on hand, the city should be able to pay its way until March 1, when the tax settlement made semi-annually by the county auditor is made, according to Auditor Landes.

GRETA GARBO COMES HERE THIS WEEK IN HER LATEST PICTURE

"Inspiration" To Play at Palace Theater for Three Days.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

GRETA GARBO, the one and only Garbo whose place in the heart of the public cannot be changed by the announcements of "another Garbo," comes to the Palace Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in her latest starring picture, "Inspiration."

Robert Montgomery heads an imposing supporting cast in which the names of Lewis Stone, Marjorie Rambeau, Beryl Mercer, John Miljan, Gwen Lee and a host of others are found.

Clarence Brown, the director who played such an important part in four other of Garbo's pictures, "Flesh and the Devil," "A Woman of Affairs," "Anna Christie" and "Romance," again directs here in "Inspiration."

Garbo goes back to her old hairdress in this picture. This is the style of coiffure copied by women all over the world several years ago. So many Hollywood movie aspirants try to look like this famous actress that Clarence Brown faced a discouraging task trying to secure 200 satisfactory applicants for

VAUDEVILLE MAKES HIT ON RETURN HERE AFTER LONG LEAVE

Palace Packs House as Stage Entertainments Reappear.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

THE first big noise is over, and vaudeville is in Marion to stay. The Palace theater was jammed for every show yesterday, indicating in a rather large way that Marion is all for vaudeville.

Ray Walzer is a hard working master of ceremonies. Cracking wise, dancing, funny little novelty skits, some clever stories and then some markedly off-color stories, and his band of 10 Debutantes all keep Walzer busy every minute of the stage show.

The orchestra of local musicians gave a good performance last night.

Casson and Marie open the show with a song-and-dance number. A rag-doll dance gets the applause Walzer and Kuban pull some non-sensical stuff that's worth the laughs, and then the bill moves up to the Debutantes. Their music is good, but it's a trifle early in period. Several of the girls are especially talented.

The show all belongs to Walzer, though. Without him to keep it moving, we fear for its life.

Eddie Quillan stars in "Night Work." This picture is as refreshing as the sound of a patter of rain on a tin roof. Cutie is a poor choice of adjective, but it expresses just how this picture strikes us. Eddie has such a terrible time trying to foster father to a baby in an orphanage on $20 a week. The stage show and the picture are on tonight for the last times. H. H.

"The Great Meadow" at the Marion tonight and Tuesday, is a strong picture and Eleanor Boardman is especially noteworthy. A few years' retirement, marriage and motherhood have done wonders for this lovely, calm, clear-eyed woman who seems to embody the spirit of the pioneer woman she portrays.

The picture tells the story of the settling of Kentucky in 1775 by the pioneers of Virginia, all the hardships they endured and the horror of the Indian warfare.

Mrs. Boardman married John Mack Brown, a splendid choice for the role, at the beginning of the picture and leaves the comforts of her home to share with him the hardships of a trek over the Indian infested Daniel Boone trail to far-away Kentucky.

Lucille LaVonne, Brown's mother, is killed by the Indians and restless, thinking of the scalp of his mother hanging at the belt of a redskin. Brown leaves Eleanor against her wishes and starts out. He is captured by the British, then in the midst of the Revolutionary war. After a year his wife, thinking him dead, marries Gavin Gordon, her mute lover from the days of their life in Virginia. When Brown returns, she has to make her choice, and the picture comes to a dramatic ending.

BARTHELMESS IN PICTURE AT OHIO

Barthelmess fans, and those in search of an entertaining picture, will enjoy "The Lash" at the Ohio tonight and Tuesday. This is his most serious role in a long time, and he takes it very seriously.

Lovely Mary Astor and Marian Nixon are easy to follow as the sweetheart and sister of "El Puma," the most reckless and plundering bandit in California.

Barthelmess is the son of a Spanish don of Old California. He returns to his native California after four years in Mexico City, reconciled to California's addition to the United States.

III treatment at the hands of Fred Kohler, a land agent of the United States, turns him from his home, his sister, his sweetheart and his adored father, Robert Edison, to a life of cool, defiant banditry that leaves all California pale at the mention of "El Puma."

He pictures himself as the avenger of his people's wrongs, but his father on his death-bed, killed by a bullet from Kohler's gun, shows his son that he is bringing only more sorrow and disgrace to the proud Spaniards of California. "El Puma" disbands his men, and in a last daring act, kills Kohler and flees to the border and Mexico, where his sweetheart is waiting for him. His sister is married to James Rennie, captain of the rangers.

There's a grand cattle stampede in the course of the picture. H. H.

Daily Proverb—"Neither gold nor grandeur can render us happy."

Well, well! Here's Mr. Groundhog setting up his judgment against that of all the other weather prophets who seem bent on bringing Miss Spring to us ahead of time.

The British blue book, published last week, offers documents showing that the Russian Reds are using forced labor. Did anybody doubt it?

A United States gangster who held up a cigar store in Montreal was given a sentence of twenty lashes and twenty years in the penitentiary. And up in Canada twenty years means twenty years.

Professor Herbert Oberth, the European rocket expert, hopes that passenger flights will be made to the moon in fifty years. That's fairly safe. The world will have forgotten his prediction decades before his time limit expires.

A New York woman was fined five dollars for poisoning twelve of her neighbors' dogs. Appreciation of the eternal fitness of things is not overly high, it is apparent, in the magistrates' court of New York.

A Paris cable says that Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh's poem, "Remembrance," has been set to music there. We're wondering what attention the poem would have attracted in Paris had it been that of some unknown.

Former President Coolidge is manifestly right in holding that the United States should get rid of Muscle Shoals, but he can hardly claim priority in the reaching of that view. Just about all the country with the exception of congress and the government-ownership champions beat him to it.

The leading cities of the Middle West are being warned that pneumonia, following influenza, is showing a marked increase. To be on the safe side, go right after influenza the minute an indication of it appears.

Four bullet holes were shot into the Good-year blimp, Mayflower, as it was nearing St. Petersburg, Florida, one day last week. The stuff sold down there must be awfully bad to cause hunters to mistake a blimp for a game bird.

Peach trees are reported in bloom in Illinois, dandelions appear on every side in Iowa, violets and roses are blooming in Oklahoma and Memphis, Tennessee, is considering the opening of the city's swimming pool. Isn't there danger that the correspondents will fool Miss Spring into getting frost-bitten?

A member of the Arkansas house told that body that "Scarface" Al Capone was head of the Hot Spring gambling interests. Isn't this Capone stuff being overdone? He would have to be a score or two of men to look after all the interests being attributed to him.

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood told the British house of lords last week that the fatal pre-war competition was beginning again and that the competitive spirit had revived even in Great Britain in the matter of air armaments. Can it be possible that we will have to fight another war for "democracy?"

Even Juicy Apples Have Worms.

Testimony given by Hugh H. Cooper before the house ways and means committee is stay-up-side reading for American business men. In five years the United States could sell Russia $1,000,000,000 worth of goods annually, is the substance of Mr. Cooper's remarks. He is supervising the 200,000 horse-power project on the Dnieper river for the soviet government. Formerly, he engineered the construction of the Muscle Shoals dam.

Incidentally, Mr. Cooper mentioned that the future of the soviet union is so big that he can't begin to grasp it, and that the ability of Uncle Sam to have a share in it rests in the hands of congress, which will determine embargo policies on Russian goods. Marriage and forced labor don't worry him overly much; the women have had sense enough to put their foot on everything that didn't safeguard them properly, he says, and as for forced labor, Mr. Cooper would like to see some one force the 16,000 Russians working for him on the Dnieper project.

But, getting back to the thought of that $1,000,000 worth of goods that Russia might take from the United States every year—Uu! What a nice, juicy apple that would be. A few more like it, displayed by gentlemen of Mr. Cooper's turn of mind, and the state department may be urged by hungry business men to forget certain of its well-established policies.

But even so, it is not likely to forget the Russian debts, the activities of the communist party in the United States and other disturbing and irritating matters.

Should a Good Plan Be Abandoned?

Agitation for cash payment of World War veterans' adjusted compensation certificates has become a national issue.

It is argued by those favorable to redeeming the certificates at this time—fifteen years before they are due—that triple benefit would result. Needy veterans would receive cash. The country would benefit from the expenditure of the cash, amounting to between $2,700,000,000 and $3,500,000,000. A generous country could show, once more, appreciation for its soldiers.

It is not pleasant, of course, to take a stand in opposition to these arguments because they are voiced by what appears to be a majority among the veterans. The welfare of those who fought for the nation should be a prime consideration at all times, but there is another side. There are others who need cash as urgently as do the veterans of the World war, and they can not be expected to believe that able-bodied ex-soldiers are suffering peculiar misfortunes from which they are exempt. If the government had sufficient money to satisfy the needs of veterans without endangering its already-weakened financial structure, there would be fewer objections to paying it, naturally. But the government does not have the money, and the public has the word of Andrew Mellon that to raise it by bond issue would depress the bond market at a critical time. A bond issue of $3,500,000,000, for instance, would equal six months of normal bond financing in the United States, thus glutting a market that should be kept open. Country banks, insurance companies, and the member banks of the Federal Reserve system—agencies responsible for the savings of millions of Americans in every walk of life—are the heavy holders of government bonds. They would be forced to write down the value of their government securities. If the bond market were affected, there is more than a possibility, however, that such an issue would not be taken up.

The effect on business of circulating such a sum of money is a moot question. The sum of $3,500,000,000, for example, represents less than one per cent. of the total annual expenditures of the people of the United States, so it hardly can be asserted that cash payment in full of all the outstanding adjusted compensation certificates would end the depression. Furthermore, it is unlikely that the money could go through the long process of authorization and distribution in time to effect materially the present depression.

The nation gave World War veterans adjusted compensation to fill the double purpose of pensions and a cash bonus. In effect, they provided veterans with twenty-year endowment insurance, payable to their dependents in the event of death before termination, or to the veterans if they outlive the termination date. Veterans have been permitted to borrow up to twenty-two per cent. of the value of the policies at six per cent. interest. In the present year $425,000,000 will be available to those for loans are coming to the veterans' bureau at the rate of $1,000,000 a day, according to General Illes.

The principles involved, therefore, are in no way different from those involved in life insurance. No policy-holder would be wise to take the cash surrender value of his policy, thereby sacrificing future protection unless driven to it by actual necessity. Particularly, would he be unwise if he were getting the insurance free. A generous country can best show its appreciation by tempering it with moderation and foresight. Veterans should be convinced, if possible, that they will serve their own interests better by holding their adjusted service certificates until they reach maturity.

There are some fifty bills concerning cash payments on the certificates before congress. Some of them ask payment in full; others are less extreme. If there is to be any liberalizing of the adjusted compensation set-up it should take the form of extending the borrowing limits of the service certificates held by the veterans. That, too, should depend on the government's ability to act without perpetrating hardships on the taxpayers.

America must be grateful for those who fought in the nation's defense, but borrowing money to show gratitude in a period of depression is not sound policy. The fastening of any huge indebtedness on the people of the country under the present circumstances could only be justified on the ground that the group to be assailed is peculiarly afflicted by prevailing conditions.

A court in White Plains, New York, has refused a young wife either divorce or alimony on her petition alleging desertion, her husband having moved out of their home when nine of her brothers moved in. She must have imagined that she married a boarding-house.

By a vote of ninety-one to three, the Alabama house has expressed its "condemnation of the very poor sportsmanship exhibited" by Senator J. Thomas Heflin "in being unwilling to admit like a man that he was defeated in a fair election." Wouldn't that be expecting a lot more from J. Thomas than his political record indicates possible?

The awful fate of the three young Mansfield men who slew a gallon filling station attendant can hardly be held to have been unexpected. The day when killers can expect to escape punishment for their crimes is past. Public sympathy is no longer given murderers.

The lower house of the Arkansas general assembly has voted $150,000,000 for the drought sufferers in that state despite the governor's warning of bond limitation. Regardless of the outcome, it's good to know that drought-afflicted states are at last trying to succor their unfortunates.

Princeton university has followed Harvard and Columbia in refusing a $25,000 bequest from the late Albert E. Pillsbury to be used "to develop sound public opinion and action" on the modern feminism movement, the testator having felt that the movement "tends to take the woman out of the home and put her in politics, government and business." Doubtless the late Mr. Pillsbury was correct in his view, but the average big university will hesitate before accepting any bequest with a condition which may have a bomb concealed in it.

But, getting back to the thought of that $1,000,000 worth of goods that Russia might take from the United States every year—Uu! What a nice, juicy apple that would be. A few more like it, displayed by gentlemen of Mr. Cooper's turn of mind, and the state department may be urged by hungry business men to forget certain of its well-established policies.

But even so, it is not likely to forget the Russian debts, the activities of the communist party in the United States and other disturbing and irritating matters.

THE WICKERSHAM COMMISSION REPORT.

Editorial Opinion.

A FOOLISH PROPOSAL.

A group of Democrats and western radicals in the house of representatives in Washington is agitating for a "liberalization" of the rules so as to permit a committee to be discharged from consideration of a bill by petition of 100 members. The existing rule requires a majority vote.

Congress Robert Luce, a recognized authority on parliamentary practice, states that this change would have the practical effect of increasing the power of the minority "to hamper and even thwart the majority." That was the sort of thing from which Speaker Reed rescued the house exactly forty-one years ago today—January 29, 1889—when he ordered the clerk to record the names of members present and refusing to vote, a form of obstruction common at that time. The adoption of the "reform" that is now proposed would be a reactionary blow at majority rule in the house.

Among the parliamentary factors that have worked to bring the senate into its present dispute is the relative impotency of a majority to overcome the obstruction presented by determined and aggressive minorities. ought not to be overlooked. The effects that might be expected to follow from the adoption of the proposed rule respecting the discharge of committee would similarly tend to lessen the esteem in which the house of representatives is held by the country. There is no particular advantage to be gained from it, as the rule would work as perniciously against a Democratic majority as against a Republican majority; and for that reason it will be surprising if there are found to be enough members of the house who are sufficiently careless of its reputation for conducting its business in a businesslike way to pass any such parliamentary anachronism.—Detroit Free Press, January 29

A CHECK ON FOREIGN LOANS.

Still far from reaching agreement on legislation to improve domestic banking, the senate committee has struck out at the state department with a proposed resolution to throttle its scrutiny of foreign loans floated in the United States. In this the senate committee appears to be wandering far afield from its major inquiry and fighting imaginary perils.

Since the Harding administration the state department has requested international bankers to submit details of foreign loans, so that the state department can point out any objections it may have. It is not mandatory on bankers to follow this plan. But those bankers would be the first to invoke the aid of the state department if they encountered trouble in foreign states in the administration of those loans. Naturally, the state department wishes to analyze the loans in advance.

The senate committee cites this as "dangerous practice," but the ground for their statement is not clear. American foreign policy is closely related to the extension of credit abroad. This is inevitable in a growing industrial nation. With something like $15,000,000,000 invested abroad, this country has created a vast industrial and financial empire, and the guarding of that investment is a major responsibility of the department of state.

If the department's authority represented a hard-and-fast control over foreign loans it would be a different story. But it is purely an advisory power. It promotes the coordination of our official foreign policy and our unofficial foreign economic policy. This surely does not make the state department's supervision of foreign loans a "dangerous practice."

Pocket Scientific Education.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

No book is the body of knowledge, so far extended the scope of man's inquiry that a survey and outline appears something well nigh untenable. In the past, not a few works, often in many volumes, have been written purporting to cover, in its main branches, the field of human history. Within recent years, this tendency to synthesize and summarize has steadily increased. On every hand we are confronted with outlines of every description, of national history, of world history, of art, literature, science, philosophy, religion, what not.

The most remarkable and successful of all these portmanteau works is "The Outline of History," by the novelist, futurist and journalist, H. G. Wells. Embodied by the extraordinary success of that work, which appears in various forms, but may be found between the covers of a single volume, Wells now comes forward with another extensive volume, entitled "The Science of Life." With himself he has associated the distinguished scientist, Professor Julian Huxley, grandson of Wells's own teacher, Darwin's associate, Thomas Henry Huxley, and Wells's own son, George Philip Wells, of University College, London.

The new work in two large volumes, is a fascinating, readable study of life, viewed from the standpoint, not primarily of "history," so-called, but of science. To be sure, it is history—the study of the birth, evolution and present status of life-forms. Such a work, as the authors well say, reflects upon the conduct of our lives throughout, throws new light upon our moral judgments, suggests fresh methods of human cooperation, imposes novel conceptions of service, and opens new possibilities and freedoms to us.

All of us are more or less familiar with the general outlines of world history. If we wish to refresh our minds on any particular phase of human history, there are reference books galore, ready at hand to supply us with all the data which we may need. This, however, is far from being the case, so far as science is concerned. Scientific knowledge is scattered in a thousand repositories, throughout countless technical journals and treatises, large and small, many of which can not be intelligently or intelligibly read by the layman.

It is, therefore, highly desirable to have, ready to hand, in a compact form, some general survey of the science of life. The new book attempts to describe life, of which man himself is a part, and in his own judgment, far the most important part; to tell simply what is surely known about it and to discuss what is suggested about it; and to draw just as much practicable wisdom as possible from the account.

"The Science of Life" is an arresting and valuable work, delightfully written yet accurate in statement and lucid in exposition. It is properly considered, unique in its field. This richly informative work may be regarded as a sort of pocket science-of-life university course, biology for the masses.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

When Ohio's Canal Came.

BY J. H. GALLIAIRTH.

Caleb Atwater, one of the best of the early historians of Ohio, who saw the canal system of Ohio put into operation, and noted its effect upon the growth of the state, set down in his book some references to the canals that show what was the sentiment of the people of the time toward this new institution of transportation. They looked upon it as the last word in cheap and efficient transportation, and the towns through which the canals were constructed were regarded as most fortunate. Nothing could prevent such towns from becoming great cities. But let the historian speak:

Speaking of Chillicothe of that day he says: "It enjoys many advantages such as lying on the Ohio and Erie canal, Delaware, a thriving town twenty-four miles north of Columbus, older than the last-mentioned town, but having no canal as Columbus has, by a navigable feeder. Delaware has not grown up like the canal towns. Newark is a thriving town of 3,000, but from its position on the canal it must always be an important point in inland trade and manufacture."

Speaking of Mt. Vernon, Atwater wrote: "This town will some day be a very important one when a canal along the Vernon river will connect it with the Ohio. All along the Miami and Ohio canals, towns are springing to life, and no description can be correct one month which was so before."

People saw the prices of their products rise, and the demand for them increase, as soon as canal transportation was offered and the canals became great arteries of trade. The people of the time could see nothing else which the towns along them took their toll, than that they were to be one great means of and our own all suggest that nothing can be transportation for all time. Their experience expected to remain permanent in the field of transportation.

TRACES DEPRESSION TO FARM PROBLEM

Disruption of Distribution Seen by Federation Head as Cause.

By International News Service.
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 2.—The breakdown in the machinery for distribution of farm products is at the bottom of the prevailing economic depression in the opinion of Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Speaking before the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation at Ohio State University here today, Thompson said that if the economic condition of agriculture could be improved by improvement of this distribution system, business in general would soon be on a sound basis.

An important reason for the depression, he declared, is that agriculture—a basic industry—has been out of balance with other economic units of national life. Although he admitted a market surplus of farm products, he vigorously opposed the general opinion that farm troubles are due to over-production.

"The breakdown," Thompson charged, "is in distribution. Somewhere between the farm and the factory, the factory and the farm, the distribution system fails to function and today's condition is the result."

He said the farm bureau is making every effort to see that all transportation mediums were coordinated to serve agriculture—the railroads, waterways, and highways, and he stressed the farm-to-market roads movement.

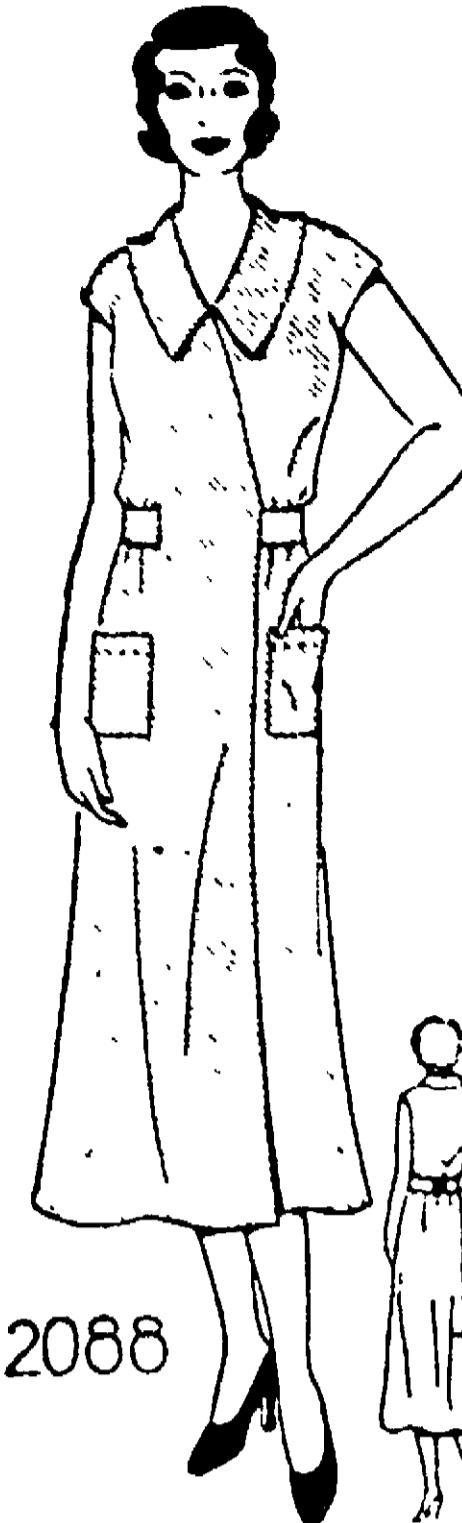

"The real solution of the agriculture problem rests in the situation of the individual farmer on his own farm," Thompson said.

PRICE OF EGGS AT LOW EBB

Heavy Production Sets Bottom Mark for Long Period, Ohio Bulletin Says.

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 3—Egg prices are at the lowest ebb for many years, with country prices at 15 cents a dozen in some places.

Send a bulletin issued here today by the Ohio Farm Bureau Corporation. The bulletin continues to say that egg prices have declined to this depth because the mild weather has resulted in heavy production and because of a number of other influences.

The better grades of farm run eggs in New York City are averaging around 22¢ cents a dozen. This is about 30 cents under the January average for the last five years.

The very heavy supply of eggs during the year 1930 was more than consumers could take, so that the year's holdings have not been cleaned up. In a frantic effort to unload, prices for storage eggs were given a drastic reduction at the end of last year and this reduction has, in a way, steadied the market for the remainder of the winter months.

January eggs are not ordinarily placed in storage and since present production is too heavy for the day-to-day consuming demand, farmers have a situation where supplies are far in excess of demand. When this happens with a perishable product, holders always reduce prices in the hope of reducing their stock.

The volume of eggs produced is undoubtedly large. The mild weather of the last few weeks has made this possible. A period of cold weather might result in smaller supplies.

Since there is no storage demand at this time, egg prices for the next 60 days will be almost entirely a matter of supplies. Should supplies decline, eggs will increase in price.

Should the present volume continue, there is little hope for much improvement until some storage demand arises.

The disaster among holders of storage eggs for the season just passing has led to a very conservative attitude in storing eggs. Undoubtedly prices will be very low during the first part of the storing season. Should supplies be smaller than anticipated during March, there might be the result of an increase in egg prices for April and early summer, but the depressed state of mind among egg people is certain to have a very bearish influence on prices.

Consumers have formed a habit of buying at low prices, and any great increase in egg prices is certain to meet with resistance from the buying public. The fact that butter is low and other meats are lower than usual has a certain degree of influence on egg prices. Altogether, the bulletin concludes, some very decided changes in the situational situation will be necessary before there will be any important increase in egg prices.

THURSDAY, a new method of dressing the hair which I am particularly anxious to have you know about. It is gaining favor rapidly among the women of distinction in fashionable circles.

This new method of dressing is called wet hairdressing and although it is similar to finger waving, there are several features un-dreamed of before in coiffures when actually arranged on the human head. Undoubtedly many of you have noted and envied the lovely hair arrangements seen on the dummy heads usually displayed in most hairdressing establishments.

Even when some type of iron wave such as the marcel is being featured, these coiffures are created almost without exception by the wet hairdressing method. And, that is why the hair appears so soft and lovely in texture and style.

It is only recently however that this method has been proven practical upon the human head. Of course, finger waving short bob is a form of wet hairdressing and it was the overwhelming success of finger waving that interested hairdressers sufficiently to perfect wet dressing for longer bobs and even for long hair.

One of the most popular styles which lends itself to wet dressing is a particularly lovely mode for the younger woman. And if you happen to be of the type that can wear the rounded-off-the-shoulder neckline, being featured in so many evening frocks, it is the perfect coiffure for your next dance.

The parting of the hair is a matter of choice, although the diagonal part is even more popular at present than it was when hair was shorter. This diagonal part begins at the center of the forehead and extends back to the point on the head where the side part would end.
